LIVING THE DREAM

Lorraine, 42, from Bury, is an assistant accountant

I loved your feature on single women over 50, known as 'swofties', [12 April issue] and how they have changed their lives for the better.

I especially related to Lindsey Agness's story – she not only set up a successful business, but has also written two books. I myself am an aspiring writer and would love to write a non-fiction book for publication. Lindsey's story has inspired me to keep going with my ambition. Thank you for a most positive article that shows that it's never too late to fulfill our dreams.
